Custom brokers can save you time, money, and stress when it comes to importing. Not only can they file paperwork on your behalf, but they can also act as your consultant, your advocate, and your legal partner. They will do whatever they can to get your shipment through customs quickly and with no snags, so you can keep your business running efficiently.

The Lic. Karim W Fournier (CBL) and Lic. Jaqueline Fournier-Chibly (CBL) are the professionals who assist the customers to make sure their shipments are legal and compliant and assist in getting those shipments cleared through U.S Customs

BONDED WAREHOUSE

Why you need to Storage in a Bonded warehouse?

The main benefit is the flexibility of storing goods before the tariffs are due. This added time frame allows many companies the ability to perform additional tasks or defer the taxes until the goods are sold, as well, allow importers to delay paying duties on their imported goods.

Bonded warehouses offer increased security for your goods because they are monitored by customs officials. This means that any goods stored in a bonded warehouse are subject to regular inspection, and any duties owed on the goods must be paid to keep them in the warehouse. This helps to ensure that your goods are secure and accounted for at all times.
